

Otis Cook Park is a 3 acre neighborhood park. The park features 127 species of trees and is used by students participating in environmental studies. The park is named after Otis Cook who deeded the land to the City in 1940 to be used as a public park.